Ironmen run on milk.

Training is not enough. Athletes must be properly nourished to be in the right shape to compete. That's why they drink MILK for their milk. They rely on the nutrition and energy that it builds into their bones and to help fat convert to keep them lighter and faster. It gives them the nutrition they need to run, compete and win.

When the first season of the hit Fox series "Glee" ended, it was a surprise that the show would be back. But now, with the second season starting, it's clear that the show is here to stay. It's a shame that the show is not getting the same level of promotion as it deserves. But regardless, "Glee" is a show that is worth watching.
